

Kenneth W. Chilton

16 July 2009

Kenneth W. Chilton, Ph.D. is Emeritus Director of the Institute for Study of Economics and the Environment (ISEE) and professor of management in the School of Business and Entrepreneurship at Lindenwood University in St. Charles, Missouri. Before coming to Lindenwood University he was a researcher and administrator at the Center for the Study of American Business (currently the Weidenbaum Center on the Economy, Government, and Public Policy) at Washington University in St. Louis for 24 years.

Ken is a gifted public speaker and a good friend of the Discussion Club. In 1988 he was the recipient of the Discussion Club's Spirit of Freedom award. He has published numerous reports and spoken to a variety of audiences about environmental issues. His recent studies include; Placing Children's Environmental Health Risks in Perspective; Four Suggestions for Improving Environmental Health Policy; and Are Economic Growth and a Sustainable Environment Compatible?

Dr. Chilton is contributing editor of two books - The Dynamic American Firm (1996), and Environmental Protection: Regulating the Results (1991). He is co-editor of two other -- American Manufacturing in a Global Market (1989), and Public Policy Toward Corporate Takeovers (1988). He received his BS and MS in management science from Northwestern University. He received his Ph.D. in business administration from Washington University (1992, 1994).

Title: "Prophets of Doom vs the Dismal Scientists"